How many Faculty Admission Exams (FAE) do we have in an academic year?

- ▶ The FAE is administered four times in an academic year; September, January, and June and after summer school.
- ▶ Summer School: Summer school students can take this exam.

Who can take the Faculty Admission Exams (FAE)?

- ▶ January FAE can be taken by Upper-intermediate and Pre-faculty students. Intermediate level students have to pass their level to take the exam. However, if students fail in the second module due to absenteeism, they cannot take the FAE in January.

Who can take the June&September Faculty Admission Exams (FAE)?

- ▶ June FAE can be taken by all students without considering their level of English. However, if students fail due to absenteeism in the 4th module, they cannot take the FAE in June; they can only take the FAE in September.

How can Intermediate students get extra points added to their FAE score?

- ▶ If intermediate students pass their levels, 5% of their overall score will be added to their FAE score. For example, if a student gets 70 (borderline pass) from intermediate level, 3.5 points will be added to their FAE score.

How can Upper-intermediate students get extra points added to their FAE score?

- ▶ If upper intermediate students pass their level, 10% of their overall score will be added to their FAE score. For instance, if a student gets 70 (borderline pass) from upper intermediate level, 7 points will be added to their FAE score.

How can pre-faculty (advanced) students start their departments?

- ▶ Pre-faculty students who successfully pass their level can directly start their faculty without taking the FAE.
